Thefts Are Cleared By 3 Arrests

South-end Boys Admit Breaking Into Starkey's, Also Funk's and Murphy's.

A series of minor thefts at Funk's and G. C. Murphy's Five and Ten cent store and climaxed by the ransacking of the home of Alonzo Starkey, Logan street, Thursday afternoon with the theft of $1.70 was cleared up late Thursday when Officer William McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell arrested three youths who admitted the thefts.

The three boys arrested are Harold Rambo, 14, S. Washington street, Nelson Dixon, 15, S. Clinton street, and Harold Smith, 12, E. Ohio street.

RANSACKED HOME

The arrest of the boys followed a report by Mrs. Starkey that her home had been ransacked while she was away Thursday afternoon. Officer McCrady answered the call and upon investigation in the south end of the city learned that these three boys had been seen around the Starkey house and that Mrs. Starkey had ordered them to leave her front yard before she left the house. McCrady recalled that he had seen the youths going in the direction of Darby creek, apparently swimming. He called Fissell who met him at the river bridge and both officers went to the swimming hole in the creek.

The three boys were questioned there and denied any implication in the robbery.

The officers went back to town and again went to the south end where upon further questioning learned that the Starkey home saw the boys playing around there after Starkey's left. The officers again went to Darby creek and arrested Dixon and Smith who admitted their part in the theft. Rambo was later found in town and admitted his part in the theft.

After further questioning at the county jail the three boys admitted taking articles from the Funk grocery and from Murphy's. Bananas and other things were taken from Funk's and pencils, chewing gum, candy and other minor things were taken from Murphy's.

HAD STORE KEY

Rambo admitted having a key to the cellar door at the Murphy store and entering it several times, some evening as early as 7 o'clock.

The boys gained entrance to the Funk store by removing bricks against the roof in the rear, just large enough for one at a time to pass through.

The three youths have implicated a number of other Circleville youths in thefts in the past several months and Fissell and McCrady are attempting to make additional arrests.

The boys have not yet been given hearings before Juvenile Judge E. A. Brown.

There was no report as to casualties.

Peshawar was an armed camp. The military was supreme and on hand everywhere.

Heavy gunfire in the hills was audible in the city and it was assumed that the mountain guns of the British artillery were busy pounding away at the hill-cloistered fastnesses were tribesmen had based their forces.

DEMOCRATS TOLL BELL OF VICTORY

Hopes of Victory Fill Veins of Enthusiastic Throng At Columbus Thursday.

By JOHN J. VINCENT

COLUMBUS, O., June 6—With the hope of victory pulsing through their veins, but still very undecided on the "wet-dry" issue, the 1,500 Ohio Democrats, who attended the "Victory" dinner of that political party here last night, are returned to their homes in the state's 88 counties today to carry the Democratic standard onward.

COX TOASTMASTER

Former Governor James M. ("Jimmy") Cox, one-time candidate for president, fired a bombshell into the assembled delegates when he abruptly declared that he is in favor of the repeal of the prohibition amendment. The ex-political leader set to rest reports that he would be drafted into running for either governor or senator, by saying, "I will not be a candidate for any office."

Atlee Pomerene, former U. S. Senator followed Cox's lead, and in his speech, flayed the Anti-Saloon League and its alliances with certain churches.

Statements by Ex-congressman Martin L. Davey that the "wet-dry" issue should not be allowed to split the Democratic ranks met with vigorous applause.

Other speakers carefully avoided the liquor question. Pomerene's speech, however, was loaded with verbal dynamite.

FLAYS LEAGUE

"Leaders of the anti-saloon league do not care what your habits are, the sooner you will bow down morning, noon and night to Westerville and vote as Westerville dictates. If you will do this you will get Westerville's support if you are a Republican."

The Republican tariff, Hoover farm relief and other Republican policies were the object of bitter attacks by other speakers.

George White, former national chairman of the Democrats, and now a candidate for governor, declared:

"We are on the eve of another great democratic victory that will retire more Republicans to private life than have been defeated in any one year in half a century."

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national democratic executive committee, launched an attack upon Ohio's two senators, Fess and McCulloch.

TOWN AFTER FIRE TRUCK

New Holland Hears Proposition To Provide Protection To Community.

Plans in which New Holland may obtain a motorized fire department which will also provide protection to rural residents near the village were formulated by the village council at their meeting held this week. Representatives of a fire engine company were present at the meeting in the interests of selling the truck.

A plan was presented whereby protection service would be sold to rural residents to an amount equalling half the cost of the equipment. This fact seemed to appeal to all the members of council inasmuch as the entire community would be protected at a reasonable cost to all.

With the purchase of the apparatus, it would doubtless be necessary to install a number of cisterns at strategic points of the town.

The village's portion of the cost would be less than $400. This amount could be paid by village bonds extending over a period of 10 years without bringing the matter of a bond issue before the voters.

New Holland will be free from debt after Sept. 1 when the last street bond will be retired from funds now available. Many residents of the village believe it is an opportune time for securing modern equipment at low cost.

GASOLINE FIRE SWEEPS TOWN IN KENTUCKY

4-Year-Old Child Trapped and Burned To Death—Lumber Yard Ruined.

BULLETIN

LOTHAIR, Ky., June 6 — One person is dead today and 100 coal miners are homeless as the result of a gasoline fire which swept the Standard Oil Company storage plant and surrounding buildings in the heart of this Perry county town in southeastern Kentucky yesterday.

Little 4-year-old Junior Vanover was burned to death when he was trapped in the plant. He had been sent there by his mother on an errand to his father.

RESIDENCE RUINED

Twenty residences of coal miners near the plant were destroyed by the flames of the dreaded gasoline fire. Four other homes were dynamited to check the spread of the conflagration.

The flames also spread to the property of the Algoma Coal Company where $50,000 loss was occasioned. The Standard Oil Company officials made a conservative estimate of their loss at $100,000.

A grocery store and a shoe shop were also razed by the blaze. The freight warehouse of the Louisville and Nashville railroad was damaged seriously.

GASOLINE AIDS

Sixty thousand gallons of gasoline, 20,000 gallons of kerosene and 40,000 gallons of oil provided fuel for the flames.

Lothair is a mining and oil town of about 2,500 population. It has been built up around the property of the Standard Oil Company, and for a time the flames threatened to wipe out the entire town.

A gasoline fire is one of the most difficult blazes to extinguish, firemen declared.

The fire yesterday recalled the burning of the Combs Hotel at Hazard, seat of Perry county, two years ago, when six persons lost their lives and damage of $500,000 resulted.

LUMBER FIRE

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 6—Damage done by the spectacular fire which swept the yards of the Jackson Lumber Company here and for a time threatened adjoining property valued at $500,000, today was estimated at between $35,000 and $65,000.

PROHIBITION LANDS 7,158 IN FED. AND STATE PRISONS

First Complete Census of Country's Prohibition Prison Population Told To House by West Virginian Today.

WASHINGTON, June 6—Prohibition has landed 7,158 people in state and federal penitentiaries, Rep. Bachmann (R) of West Virginia, told the house today in presenting the first complete "census" of the country's prohibition prison population.

The number is increasing steadily, with federal courts apparently far from ready to send prohibition violators to prison than state courts, Bachmann said.

The survey disclosed that prohibition law violations account for 27 per cent of the federal prison population and only 3 1-2 percent of the state prisons, he said.

Analyzing his detailed figures from a hundred state, and five federal prisons, Bachmann declared both are crowded far beyond capacity. State prisons have a capacity of 94,704 with 116,670 confined he said.

The prison of West Virginia was cited as the most overcrowded. With a normal capacity of 840, there were 2,296 prisoners confined in its prisons on January 1, 1930, he said. He denied, however, that prohibition is a factor in overcrowding of state prisons.

The survey showed 3,121 persons in five federal prisons for violating prohibition laws on January 1, 1930, and 4,037 in the 100 state prisons.

Ohio with 8,806 has more prisoners than any other state. Illinois is next with 8,026; New York third with 8,019 and Michigan fourth with 7,118.

Michigan has more prisoners confined in federal prisons than any other state, with 750. Illinois has 743 Texas 615, West Virginia 612, Kentucky 580.

There are more prisoners in state prisons of Texas for violating the prohibition law than any other state. On Jan. 1, 1930, there were 625. New York, Nevada, Montana, Arizona, New Hampshire and North Carolina have no prisoners in state prisons for prohibition violations, while New Jersey has one, Wisconsin two and Utah three.

FORMER LOCAL BOY WINS PROMOTION

W. C. Mead Manager of Ohio Fuel Gas at Mansfield, An Important Post.

W. C. Mead, a well known former resident of this city, and now of Mansfield, O., has been promoted to manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. at Mansfield and assistant manager of the firm in the vicinity in Pennsylvania, charged with assault and intent to kill Kenneth Williams whom he is alleged to have struck with a piece of iron, entered a plea of not guilty in Fayette county justice of the peace court and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond.

The Williams boy sustained several lacerations during the encounter with Kemp.

Utilities Must Compute Rate Assessed Subscribers of Citizen Co.

The fight of subscribers in Circleville, Ashville, Williamsport and Laurelville against the advanced rates of the Citizens Telephone Co., set up on July 1, 1927, and effective since that time, received a favorable turn Friday when the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio announced that a final valuation made by their engineer showed the company's valuation $40,754.45 less than its tentative valuation released November 14, 1928 and in which the City of Circleville and the telephone company objected.

The present value as computed by the commission is $374,630.26.

The telephone company engineers estimated the valuation at $423,932.00 to which the city strenuously objected. The company gave bond on July 1, 1927 when it announced its valuation, and under the Pense law has been collecting rates according to that valuation since that time.

The Pense law, however, was repealed by the last legislature.

The final valuation as set down by the commission is only $900.00 more than the valuation made by the city's engineer, Beman Thomas and Company of Columbus.

City Solicitor Paul E. Adams appeared rather jubilant when he learned the valuation corresponding so nearly with that the city set down.

TO FIX PRICE

The matter that is now of most importance is what the commission will do with the rates set down to replace the rates when the telephone company's valuation in 1927.

According to the valuation set down by the commission it is evident that the rate will be somewhat lower than it now is, and according to law, subscribers will be entitled to a refund of all money in excess to the utilities commission's rate from the time the Citizens' telephone rate went into effect.

The fight of the city and surrounding villages against this valuation was started immediately after the rate was boosted, while C. A. Weldon was city solicitor here. Paul Adams, succeeded him the following January, 1928 and the fight has been going on ever since.

Following is the text of the letter received by the editor of the Herald Friday from Ira E. Sprankle, superintendent of investigation of the public utilities commission:

"Members of The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio today issued an order setting forth the final valuation of telephone property of The Citizens Telephone Company at Circleville, Ohio, in connection with a request for increased rates April 30, 1927."

"This present valuation amounts to $374,630.26 as compared to the tentative value announced by the Commission on November 14, 1928."

"The tentative value announced at that time was protested both by company officials and also City officials. The company claiming the value was low as compared to their estimate of $623,932.00 and the City claiming the value was excessive for property used and useful in the service of the public."

"Numerous hearings have been held subsequently to the announcement of the tentative value and the filing of the protests and on August 22, 1929, the case was referred to Wm. R. L. Dyer, Chief Engineer of the Commission, for a re-investigation which resulted in the value being reduced to the amount set forth in today's order."

"Unless appealed to, The Supreme Court, this value will be referred to Commission Accountants for study and will be used as a basis for the final computation of rates in this community."

South-end Boys Admit Breaking Into Starkey's, Also Funk's and Murphy's.

A series of minor thefts at Funk's and G. C. Murphy's Five and Ten cent store and climaxed by the ransacking of the home of Alonzo Starkey, Logan street, Thursday afternoon with the theft of $1.70 was cleared up late Thursday when Officer William McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Miller Fissell arrested three youths who admitted the thefts.

The three boys arrested are Harold Rambo, 14, S. Washington street, Nelson Dixon, 15, S. Clinton street, and Harold Smith, 12, E. Ohio street.

RANSACKED HOME

The arrest of the boys followed a report by Mrs. Starkey that her home had been ransacked while she was away Thursday afternoon. Officer McCrady answered the call and upon investigation in the south end of the city learned that these three boys had been seen around the Starkey house and that Mrs. Starkey had ordered them to leave her front yard before she left the house. McCrady recalled that he had seen the youths going in the direction of Darby creek, apparently swimming. He called Fissell who met him at the river bridge and both officers went to the swimming hole in the creek.

The three boys were questioned there and denied any implication in the robbery.

The officers went back to town and again went to the south end where upon further questioning learned that a youth working near the Starkey home saw the boys playing around there after Starkey's left. The officers again went to Darby creek and arrested Dixon and Smith who admitted their part in the theft. Rambo was later found in town and admitted his part in the theft.

After further questioning at the county jail the three boys admitted taking articles from the Funk grocery and from Murphy's. Bananas and other things were taken from Funk's and pencils, chewing gum, candy and other minor things were taken from Murphy's.

Rambo admitted having a key to the cellar door at the Murphy store and entering it several times, some evening as early as 7 o'clock.

The boys gained entrance to the Funk store by removing bricks against the roof in the rear, just large enough for one at a time to pass through.

The three youths have implicated a number of other Circleville youths in thefts in the past several months and Fissell and McCrady are attempting to make additional arrests.

The boys have not yet been given hearings before Juvenile Judge E. A. Brown.

SURPRISE VISIT NOW SORROWFUL

A happy surprise visit with her parents was turned into sorrow Thursday for Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer of E. Union street, who left her home here to visit her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Hudson, in Fremont, O. The visit was to have been a surprise.

Soon after she and her son left the house, a telegram was delivered at the home of a neighbor, telling of the sudden death of Mr. Hudson in Fremont. Mrs. Reichelderfer did not learn of his death until she reached her parents' home.

PROHIBITION LANDS 7,158 IN FED. AND STATE PRISONS

First Complete Census of Country's Prohibition Prison Population Told To House by West Virginian Today.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Prohibition has landed 7,158 people in state and federal penitentiaries, Rep. Bachmann (R) of West Virginia, told the house today in presenting the first complete "census" of the country's prohibition prison population.

The number is increasing steadily, with federal courts apparently far from ready to send prohibition violators to prison than state courts, Bachmann said.

The survey disclosed that prohibition law violations account for 27 per cent of the federal prison population and only 3 1-2 percent of the state prisons, he said.

Analyzing his detailed figures from a hundred state, and five federal prisons, Bachmann declared both are crowded far beyond capacity. State prisons have a capacity of 94,704 with 116,670 confined he said.

The prison of West Virginia was cited as the most overcrowded. With a normal capacity of 840, there were 2,296 prisoners confined in its prisons on January 1, 1930, he said. He denied, however, that prohibition is a factor in overcrowding of state prisons.

The survey showed 3,121 persons in five federal prisons for violating prohibition laws on January 1, 1930, and 4,037 in the 100 state prisons.

Ohio with 8,806 has more prisoners than any other state, Illinois is next with 8,026; New York third with 8,019 and Michigan fourth with 7,118.

Michigan has more prisoners confined in federal prisons than any other state, with 750. Illinois has 743 Texas 615, West Virginia 612, Kentucky 580.

There are more prisoners in state prisons of Texas for violating the prohibition law than any other state. On Jan. 1, 1930, there were 635. New York, Nevada, Montana, Arizona, New Hampshire and North Carolina have no prisoners in state prisons for prohibition violations, while New Jersey has one; Wisconsin two and Utah, three.

FORMER LOCAL BOY WINS PROMOTION

W. C. Mead Manager of Ohio Fuel Gas at Mansfield, An Important Post.

W. C. Mead, a well known former resident of this city, and now of Mansfield, O., has been promoted to manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., at Mansfield and assistant manager of the firm in the district comprising Richland, Ashland, Crawford and Huron counties and parts of Wayne, Holmes and Seneca counties.

Mead, after leaving school here obtained his first position with the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., here through George Foerst.

His position is one of the most important in the company.

Utilities Must Compute Rate Assessed Subscribers of Citizen Co.

The fight of subscribers in Circleville, Ashville, Williamsport and Laurelvile against the advanced rates of the Citizens Telephone Co., set up on July 1, 1927, and effective since that time, received a favorable turn Friday when the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio announced that a final valuation made by their engineer showed the company's valuation $90,754.46 less than its tentative valuation released November 14, 1925 and to which the City of Circleville and the telephone company objected.

The present value as computed by the commission is $374,630.28.

The telephone company engineer estimated the valuation at $632,933.00 to which the city strenuously objected. The company gave bond on July 1, 1927 when it announced its valuation, and under the Pense law has been collecting rates according to that valuation since that time.

The Pense law however, was repealed by the last legislature.

The final valuation as set down by the commission is only $950.91 more than the valuation made by the city's engineer, Beman Thomas and Company of Columbus.

City Solicitor Paul E. Adkins appeared rather jubilant when he learned the valuation corresponded so nearly with that the city set down.

TO FIX PRICE

The matter that is now of utmost importance is what rate the commission and its engineers will set down to replace the rate set when the telephone company's valuation in 1927.

According to the valuation set down by the commission it is evident that the rate will be somewhat lower than it now is, and according to law, subscribers will be entitled to a refund of all money in excess to the utilities commission's rate from the time the Citizens' telephone rate went into effect.

The fight of the city and surrounding villages against this valuation was started immediately after the rate was boosted, while C. A. Weldon was city solicitor here. Paul Adkins succeeded him the following January, 1928 and the fight has been going on ever since.

Following is the text of the letter received by the editor of The Herald Friday from Ira E. Sprankle, superintendent of investigation of the public utilities commission:

"Members of The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio today issued an order setting forth the final valuation of telephone property of The Citizens Telephone Company at Circleville, Ohio, in connection with a request for increased rates filed April 30, 1927.

"This present valuation amounting to $374,630.28 is $90,754.46 less than the tentative value announced by the Commission on November 14, 1928.

"The tentative value announced at that time was protested both by company officials and also City officials. The company claiming the value was low as compared to their estimate of $632,933.00 and the City claiming the value was excessive for property used and useful in the service of the public.

"Numerous hearings have been held subsequently to the announcement of the tentative value and the filing of the protests and on August 22, 1929, the case was referred to Wm. R. L. Dyer, Chief Engineer of the Commission, for a reinvestigation which resulted in the value being reduced to the amount set forth in today's order.

"Unless appealed to The Supreme Court, this value will be referred to Commission Accountants for study and will be used as a basis for the final computation of rates in this community."

Lettering on Roofs In City To Be Done At Once—Plans For Air Circus On.

The monthly meeting of the local chapter of the N. A. A. which was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms has brought several developments for the betterment of aviation here.

Lettering on the prominent roofs about Circleville for use of aviators is to be done at once since the city has donated $25 to assist in the work and the chapter members have agreed to do the painting.

The club members voted to make

Sam Shape of Columbus, a member of the local chapter since he is a Pickaway-co product and belongs to the "Early Birds" club having been flying since 1913.

The Glider committee is to get its members signed up so that a glider can be purchased as soon as possible, a large number of non members of the N. A. A. having asked to be allowed to join. Two suitable fields have been found and it remains for the club to agree on one of them.

The club also means to stress the fact that women are eligible and wanted in the N. A. A. and any lady wishing to become a member may have full rights of the club.

Plans for an Air meet for this summer are taking form and outside companies are already offering to bring in planes free of charge to foster more air mindness.

CHAIN BANKS

We have chain stores of many kinds spanning the country. We have chain factories, too, though that term is seldom used of them. And now it is clear that we are destined to have chain banks.

A pretentious project of this kind has been announced in New York. A financial combine with resources of $1,000,000,000 is being formed by August Belmont and Company, a Wall Street firm, together with Pomeroy and Salmon of the same financial district. They propose to bring under one control 50 or more banks in Pennsylvania and explain that this is only part of a comprehensive plan to band together scores of banks in other states.

With the present urge of banking capital to extend its operations, the country may soon be covered by such chains. It is not expected that any permanent legal obstacles will be met with.

It is all very well, and in the natural course of modern progress, perhaps. Many will regret, however, the elimination of the small independent banker whose work has been woven into the life of his own community or neighborhood.

A bigger question, perhaps, in the long run, is whether these chains will drag local money to New York for stock speculation and other financial high jinks, or inversely make more funds available to local communities.

GROWN-UPS CAN LEARN

This isn't altogether the age of youth. It may be tending that way in industry and trade, but in education and in the professions requiring education it is the age of adults.

The old tradition has been that people soon become "too old to learn." It has been discovered only within a few years that this is nonsense. The truth is exactly the opposite. Children are at a disadvantage so great that we might almost say they are "too young to learn."

It has been found by a commission employed by the Carnegie Foundation that it takes children in the first elementary school grades 30 times as long to learn their subjects as it takes grown-ups. The latter, helped by experience, desire and power of application, acquire in 100 hours an amount of education that takes the former 3,000 hours to acquire.

In harmony with this discovery, we find a tremendous development nowadays in "adult education." Night schools for grown-ups flourish as never before. Night high schools are crowded. There are even night colleges for those who have not been able to attend such institutions before they started their earning years.

The response to such opportunities as they offer is almost incredible. In Cleveland college mainly a night college for grown-ups, an institution only in its fourth year, there is already an enrollment of over 7,000 students.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

It is appalling to learn from the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety that more than 30,000 persons were killed and 7,000,000 others were injured in 1929 in automobile accidents. Furthermore, the death rate from this cause is going up faster than the number of cars.

The states which have the best traffic record—meaning the lowest accident and death rate—happen to be those in which licensing of motorists is required. That licensing does not provide a complete check of all incompetent and careless drivers, but it makes a very good beginning. More states should adopt it.

MEDALS FOR MEN OF NC-4

On May 24, 1930, the American government got around to the bestowal of medals on the 7 men who participated in the flight of the navy sea-plane NC-4 from Newfoundland to Portugal. That splendid flight took place in 1919. It was the first time the Atlantic had been flown.

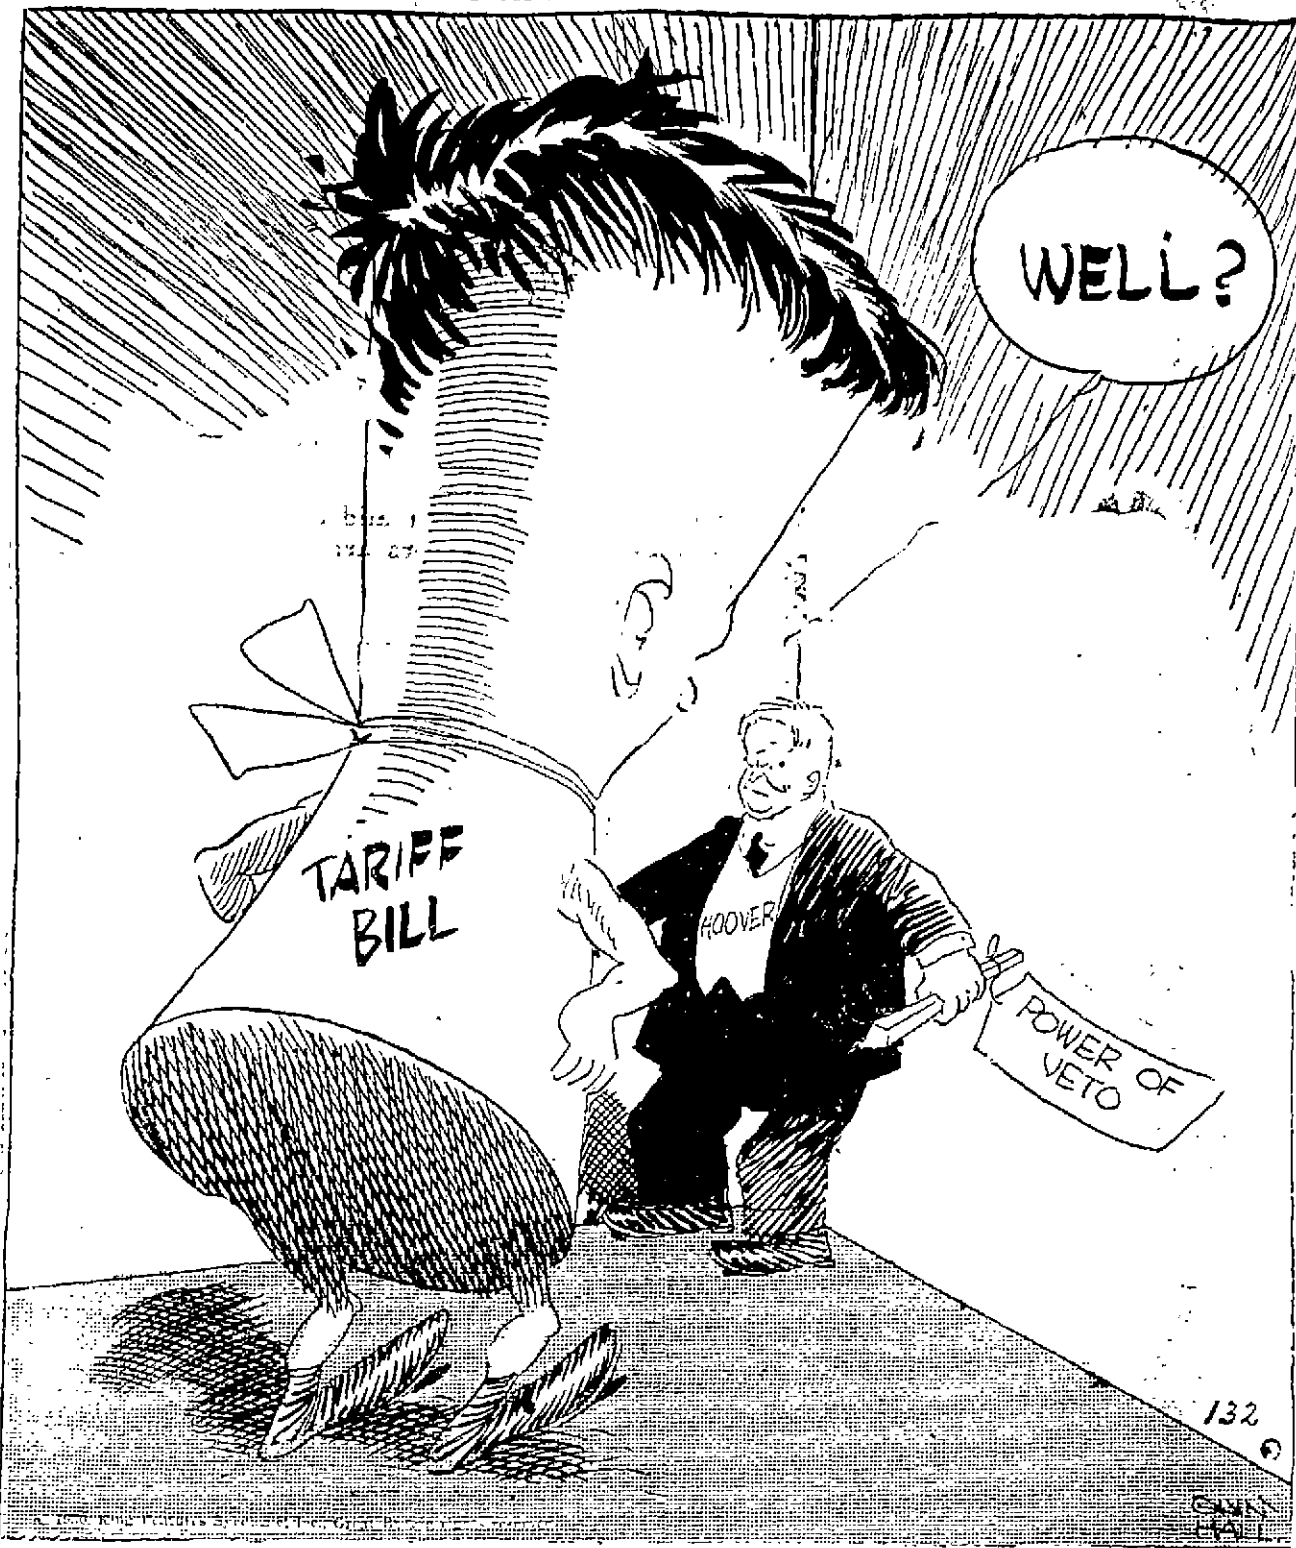

This business of paying honor and presenting medals is done better these days. The government honored Lindbergh and Byrd promptly for their transatlantic feats three years ago. There is such a thing as unseemly haste, but it hardly applies to prompt recognition of courage and skill, both of which were shown by the Navy flyers in 1919. Are there other heroes waiting belated recognition?

MORE ABOUT SLEEP

The department of psychology of Colgate University, in its zeal to learn all about sleep, its causes, effects and elusiveness, has performed exhaustive experiments with students and now seeks further information. For three weeks all guests at a New York hotel are being asked questions about their night's rest, such as:

Did you sleep well? Did you have pleasant dreams? Were you cheerful on waking or did you feel like staying in bed? Were you awakened during the night by a taxi cab, a trolley car or a fire siren? What kind of pillows do you prefer—soft, hard or medium?

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER I.
THE party broke up and Eve gave Nory a wan little smile of gratitude. "You made it realistic, Nory. Made them all think you in love with me."

"Why shouldn't I?" he asked in a low, blurry tone. "Why shouldn't I, Eve?"

He let her go home alone because she asked this. There would be a quarrel with Ken—she felt this in her bones—and wished to brace herself. He had gone to Hilltop House; perhaps he would remain late. The clash might be put off till tomorrow. She felt dizzy and ill as she let herself into the bungalow, sat down to wait.

But Ken came almost at once, stood there white and furious. "So you had to go, butting in again. Messing things all over creation."

"Someone had to do something, Ken. You pay no attention to dead lines at all. I only wanted your stuff to get out."

"You knew how I felt about those sketches. A damn shame a woman has got to run a man—oh, a damn shame."

Tiredly, without rancor, Eve got up, went into the bedroom. She moved her things into the guest chamber across the hall, locked the door and went to bed. Ken was coldly polite in the morning. It put Eve all in the wrong, that chill contemptuous dignity of Ken's; shut her away from him, made her a stranger.

She was beyond feeling this keenly, however. She understood only one thing; that she had failed as Ken's wife. Not all her fault. Ken was not born to be a husband. He was not meant to be head of a household and family. And this was not his fault either. Ken was made differently from such men as the uncles for example, Roger Mills, Jimmy Stewart. He was not finer necessarily, but different.

Mary had told her long ago that this was so. "They're wonderful, some of them, in their way, but it isn't our way. Alien species—I doubt if we ever actually get to know them. They think differently—of course, or there'd be no art or music or novels—and so they have to act differently, too. The thing is that the two kinds just can't mix—our kind and theirs."

Mary said this the first night Ken came to see her, when Eve was all a-thrill with the wonder of him, the glory of dawning love. And Eve made light of it because she thought a high and holy love levelled all differences. What a kid she had been, flying in the face of things no one could understand!

When her thought got around to this point it brought her up against something that puzzled her—Nory.

piness or well-being of others as dependent upon him. A child at heart. Grown up in years and stature but a baby inside. Often and often she had thought of him as a big kid—thought of him so with tenderness. Now she saw this had been one reason for her failure, that she had done nothing to bring him to realization of the fact that life was a serious proposition and not to be played for the thrill that was in it while problems all were shifted to another's shoulders.

They sat at the breakfast table both rather white, speaking some times of things that did not matter—the first signs of Spring in warm pockets of the valleys, a new record in aviation established by a California girl, the astonishing new leaf turned by Jan and Clay.

"A hell of a marriage that will travels telephoned from Hilltop House. Eve imagined the message saying that Lilas would not come; she heard Ken raging at the telephone, demanding speech with Miss Allan.

"What's up?" he asked at last in a different, softer tone. And later, consternation creeping through his voice: "But there's only one more picture in the series—two or three sittings at most."

But couldn't you wait a few days? Just a few days? Eve went into the kitchen and closed the door so she needn't listen to more. A new note in the siren song. Lilas pretending she was going away, going through the motions of a rush to Atlantic City, impressing upon Ken how necessary she was to him. Ah, the poor kid, dangling at the end of a string!

She Heard Ken Raging on the Telephone

"Ken said, 'Jan hovering like an old hen, bossing him around, and Clay watching a chance to break over.'"

"Yes—a great mistake for a woman to hover." Was there a double edge to Ken's remark? He had accused her of bossing—he had deliberately repeating the charge?

Ken's eyes were on his plate; he looked chilled and distant—legues, seens, eternities distant. She might put out her hand, touch his sleeve; she might fling herself into his arms, possibly feel his kiss on her hair, hear him whisper, "Ah, well, sweetheart—ah, well—"

And still they would be worlds apart, separated supremely, hopelessly. She got up, began to clear the table, going about with jangling steps. Nothing seemed real to her; she moved within an infinitude of desolation filled with phantoms, dream shapes which came and went. But sometimes small lightning flashes of pain struck through the mists and these were real enough. Only pain was real!

Lilas was later than usual this morning; eventually one of the ser-

A fierce sense of protection surged up in her. At that moment she would have snatched him away from anything so obvious—a thing that only he could not see through.

Yet in the next instant she realized there was nothing she could do. If she were to tell him exactly how things stood he would not believe her; he would turn colder, more polite.

Through the kitchen window she saw him hurry out to the garage, shrugging into his coat on the way. Lilas had allowed herself to be persuaded to remain. Of course—of course! Only now Ken must come to her. Raw Spring winds—she must avoid those—and Ken could work just as well in her studio.

Almost Eve could hear the low drawl, see the mocking green eyes. If Lilas hadn't told him this it had been something else quite as shoddy. And Ken had swallowed it whole; he would be grateful to her for giving up the trip. And he had gone away without so much as a word.

Theatres

AT THE METROPOLITAN
Movie directors just won't let Charles Ruggles act a sober part. In his years as one of the funniest men he was always at his very best as a "drunk" and the tradition has carried over into the realm of audible celluloid. In "Gentlemen of the Press" and in "The Ladies Lies," as well as in "The Battle of Paris" Charlie had to stumble around with the hiccups.

Now he is appearing in "Roadhouse Nights," Paramount's smash riot at the Metropolitan Theatre and you guessed it—he's tipsy again.

Ruggles is a care-free Chicago reporter in this smash riot of fun and rum, comedians and contraband, thugs and thespians. He is sent out by his city editor to get the story of a rum king's activities in the little town of Moran near the big city. When he arrives, he runs into his old sweetheart, the blues-singer Helen Morgan. Fellow-performers with her at the rum king's roadhouse headquarters are Clayton, Jackson and Durante, singers, dancers and funny men par excellence.

Fred Kohler, the rum king, in love with Helen, finds the two sweethearts in a loving embrace and vows that Charlie shall pay plenty for stealing his "dame." From then on it is a rapid-fire salvo of riotous entertainment.

AT THE CLIFTONA

These Hollywood girls fool you! Take Greta Granstedt, for instance, who appears with Reginald Denny in "What a Man!" at the Cliftona Theatre. She's a little mite of a thing, hardly five feet tall, and weight less than a hundred pounds soaking wet. She's a natural blonde, with big blue eyes, a peaches-and-cream complexion, and a divine little figure. From her naive, innocent expression no one would think she knew of life's problems, and yet—

She crossed the ocean in the steerage when three years old, has been a chore girl on a farm, a waitress, chorus girl, artist's model, moving picture extra, bathing beauty, stage and screen player—all crowded into twenty years! And now she's well on her way to success with a good part in Reginald Denny's first talking picture for Sono-Art, "What a Man!"

Born in Malmö, Sweden, Greta Granstedt came to the United States when she was three years old. The family migrated to the great Middle West, and eventually settled on a farm in Kansas. Things did not go so well and again they moved westward, this time settling in San Francisco. It was necessary for Greta to go to work, and she got a job in the kitchen of a restaurant; then she became a waitress, chorus girl, artist's model, and dancer in motion picture theatres.

AT THE GRAND

R. K. O. presents "The Runaway Bride" at the Grand Theatre Saturday in which Mary Astor, Lloyd Hughes and David Newell play the leading roles. The picture is an all-talking and is a thrilling melodrama with plenty of laughs and entertainment.

Primary Chase For Co. Auditor Brings Feature

An interesting and unusual feature of the coming primaries in August for the race for nomination of auditorship is that two men in this race are former storekeepers, one succeeding the other, when he was elected to a county office several years ago.

These men are Basil Downs of Darbyville and Harry W. Moore, local shoe merchant.

In 1920 Mr. Moore living in Darbyville was a candidate for county treasurer on the Democratic ticket and was opposed by Don Asher, Republican of New Holland. Moore was elected.

Before nominated and elected Moore conducted a general store in Darbyville.

After he was elected he moved to Circleville and Basil Downs bought his place of business in Darbyville and has conducted it since.

This year Downs and Moore are both after the same job, and if Moore is nominated, Downs will continue his business in Muhlenberg-twp, however if Moore is defeated and Downs wins, Downs will hand over his business to his brother Virgil, who is his partner at the present time.

Correct Diet Faults During Childhood

—Early Eating Habits Hard to Break

—SAYS DR. COPELAND

Unless Young Growing Folks Learn to Eat Properly and Know Something About Nutrition All Sorts of Ills Are Apt to Come in Later Life.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PROPER nutrition is the most important problem confronting the young mother. It means a constant battle to carry out a program that shall assure nutrition for the normal growth and development of her child.

Unless a child learns the habit of eating properly very early in life, it may mean that he will be weakly, sickly, flat-chested and undernourished generally. But this is not all.

Introduce all the new foods gradually and in very small amounts. Follow your doctor's orders as to what these foods shall be. Most children from the time they are a few weeks old are given orange and tomato juice. The child up to two years should follow this rule.

Youngsters who do not have strong bones, pure blood and healthy tissues without painstaking care by the parents in their proper feeding, regular hours for food, plenty of food, and the fresh air and sunshine that are their perfect health.

Let me emphasize the necessity of sunshine for every child. That radiant energy comes not from the visible rays of the sun but the ultra-violet rays of short wave length. These rays are most intense from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. and in the Summer months are more intense than in the Winter. Now is the time of year for the children to be out in the sun to get its beneficial effects.

There can be no danger from rickets or other degenerative diseases when your child has the proper food and sunshine and fresh air. A proper study of this nutrition business, and strict adherence to it, covers the whole problem of health for the young child.

Up to the time for weaning a child, about a year old, the diet will have been carefully directed. Before the teeth are formed, the child can be given cereals, properly cooked and strained, so that no in-day to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Hulse near Circleville.

Mr. J. N. Ford has purchased a new Chevrolet coach of local dealer D. W. Kuhn.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Moss and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goodchild of Columbus were the guests of relatives on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brundige and daughter Martha of Columbus, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. David McCorkle on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brundige of Chillicothe are announcing the birth of a son on Thursday.

Mrs. Leo Jarvin of Columbus was the guest of Miss Georgia Jacobs on Thursday evening then left to visit the rest of the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Jacobs and family at Hallsville.

Dr. C. C. Hatfield and Mrs. Hatfield were visitors at Mt. Sterling on Thursday.

The fifty-third Annual Convention of the Pickaway County Sunday Schools, will be held on Thursday, June 12th, at the M. E. church. A splendid program has been prepared and the Convention promises to be larger and better than usual. Noted State Specialists been engaged and the Convention should be well attended. The Emmett Chapel orchestra of young folks and a chorus from Pickaway township Sunday Schools will furnish some splendid music. Chillicothe extends hearty greeting to the Sunday schools of Pickaway county.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Sunderlan and small daughter, Janice, left by motor on Thursday to visit relatives at Dayton, O. for a week.

Eldridge Black of Kingsport, Tenn., spent Decoration Day at the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Black.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Reichelderfer and daughters, Betty and June of Laurelville and Mr. Glen Wagner of Chillicothe were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Val Wagner on Friday.

Among visitors to Chillicothe on Saturday were Mrs. J. P. Gaudener, Mrs. H. S. Boggs, Mr. Alice McRoberts, Mrs. Flo Webb, Mrs. Paul Keusthardt and Mrs. William Rindible.

When her thought got around to this point it brought her up against something that puzzled her—Nory.

Nory was a real artist in his own line, more of an artist than was Ken. Yet Nory possessed little temperament, no self-centeredness. Why was this?

She could not answer the question. Yet slowly a conclusion suggested itself. Not his work but vanity—egotism, selfishness—made Ken as he was. He saw only himself, never regarded the hap-

Often and often she had thought of him as a big kid—thought of him so with tenderness. Ken's eyes were on his plate; he looked chilly and distant—leagues, aeons, eternities distant. She might put out her hand, touch his sleeve; she might fling herself into his arms, possibly feel his kiss on her hair, hear him whisper. "Ah, well, sweetheart—ah, well—"

And still they would be worlds apart, separated supremely, hopelessly. She got up, began to clear the table. Nothing seemed real to her; she moved within an infinitude of desolation filled with phantoms, dream shapes which came and went. But sometimes small lightning flashes of pain struck through the mists and these were real enough. Only pain was real!

Lias was later than usual this morning; eventually one of the served there was nothing she could do. If she were to tell him exactly how things stood he would not believe her; he would turn colder, more polite.

Through the kitchen window she saw him hurry out to the garage, shuffling into his coat on the way. Lias had allowed herself to be persuaded to remain. Of course—of course! Only now Ken must come to her. Raw Spring winds—she must avoid those—and Ken could work just as well in her studio.

Almost Eve could hear the low drawl, see the mocking green eyes. If Lias hadn't told him this it had been something else quite as shoddy. And Ken had swallowed it whole; he would be grateful to her for giving up the trip. . . . And he had gone away without so much as a word.

To Be Continued.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

Movie directors just won't let Charles Ruggles act a sober part. In his years as one of the funniest men he was always at his very best as a "drunk" and the tradition has carried over into the realm of audible celluloid. In "Gentlemen of the Press" and in "The Ladies Lies," as well as in "The Battle of Paris" Charlie had to stumble around with the hiccups.

Now he is appearing in "Roadhouse Nights," Paramount's smash riot at the Metropolitan Theatre and you guessed it—he's tipsy again.

Ruggles is a care-free Chicago reporter in this smash riot of fun and rum, comedians and contraband, thugs and thespians. He is sent out by his city editor to get the story of a rum king's activities in the little town of Moran near the big city. When he arrives, he runs into his old sweetheart, the blues-singing Helen Morgan. Fellow-performers with her at the rum king's roadhouse headquarters are Clayton, Jackson and Durante, singers, dancers and funny men par excellence.

Fred Kohler, the rum king, in love with Helen, finds the two sweethearts in a loving embrace and vows that Charlie shall pay plenty for stealing his "dame." From then on it is a rapid-fire salvo of riotous entertainment.

AT THE CLIFTONA

These Hollywood girls fool you!

Take Greta Granstedt, for instance, who appears with Reginald Denny in "What a Man!" at the Cliftona Theatre. She's a little mite of a thing, hardly five feet tall, and weight less than a hundred pounds soaking wet. She's a natural blonde, with big blue eyes, a peaches-and-cream complexion, and a divine little figure. From her naive, innocent expression no one would think she knew of life's problems, and yet—

She crossed the ocean in the steerage when three years old, has been a chore girl on a farm, a waitress, chorus girl, artist's model, moving picture extra, bathing beauty, stage and screen player—all crowded into twenty years! And now she's well on her way to success with a good part in Reginald Denny's first talking picture for Sono-Art, "What a Man!"

Born in Malmö, Sweden, Greta Granstedt came to the United States when she was three years old. The family migrated to the great Middle West, and eventually settled on a farm in Kansas. Things did not go so well and again they moved westward, this time settling in San Francisco. It was necessary for Greta to go to work, and she got a job in the kitchen of a restaurant; then she became a waitress, chorus girl, artist's model, and dancer in motion picture theatres.

AT THE GRAND

R. K. O. presents "The Runaway Bride" at the Grand theatre Saturday in which Mary Astor, Lloyd Hughes and David Newell play the leading roles. The picture is an all-talking and is a thrilling melodrama with plenty of laughs and entertainment.

Primary Chase For Co. Auditor Brings Feature

An interesting and unusual feature of the coming primaries in August for the race for nomination of auditorship is that two men in this race are former storekeepers, one succeeding the other, when he was elected to a county office several years ago.

These men are Basil Downs of Darbyville and Harry W. Moore, local shoe merchant.

In 1920 Mr. Moore living in Darbyville was a candidate for county treasurer on the Democratic ticket and was opposed by Don Asher, Republican of New Holland. Moore was elected.

Before nominated and elected Moore conducted a general store in Darbyville.

After he was elected he moved to Circleville and Basil Downs bought his place of business in Darbyville and has conducted it since.

This year Downs and Moore are both after the same job, and if Moore is nominated, Downs will continue his business in Muhlenberg-twp, however if Moore is defeated and Downs wins, Downs will hand over his business to his brother Virgil, who is his partner at the present time.

Correct Diet Faults During Childhood

—Early Eating Habits Hard to Break

SAYS DR. COPELAND

Unless Young Growing Folks Learn to Eat Properly and Know Something About Nutrition All Sorts of Ills Are Apt to Come in Later Life.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

PROPER nutrition is the most important problem confronting the young mother. It means a constant battle to carry out a program that shall assure nutrition for the normal growth and development of her child.

Unless a child learns the habit of eating properly very early in life, it may mean that he will be weakly, sickly, flat-chested and under-nourished generally. But this is not all, for all sorts of troubles are apt to go with them—poor teeth, poor eyesight, catarrh, colds, and a low resistance to disease.

This matter of nutrition for the growing child is so important that it should be shouted from the house-tops! People are so busy they do not want to be bothered. Well, there is just one thing about it, it is the paramount thing to think about, this precious health of your child.

Every mother should inform herself about food values and all the simple rules of hygiene which have to do with the health of a young child. Study a good book on the care of a child. There are myriads of them. Consult your family doctor about the best combinations of foods for your child and follow his directions.

Up to the time for weaning a child, about a year old, the diet will have been carefully directed. Before the teeth are formed, the child can be given cereals, properly cooked and strained, so that no indigestible hard lumps or even small particles are left in it.

To cook cereals for so young a child they should be steamed in a double boiler for two or three hours. This should be done, no matter if your cereal is advertised as a quick-cooked variety. It is only after long cooking that the cereal grains are made soft and nutritious.

After weaning, a child should still have plenty of milk to drink, but the amount will be reduced somewhat to afford an appetite for some of the solid foods. Cereals with whole milk, several varieties of strained vegetables and fruits may be given. Cream soups and strained vegetable soups are excellent. Lamb, beef and chicken broths with rice or tapioca are excellent for the child's luncheon.

Introduce all the new foods gradually and in very small amounts. Follow your doctor's orders as to what these foods shall be. Most children from the time they are a few weeks old are given orange and tomato juice. The child up to two years should follow this rule.

Youngsters cannot have strong bones, pure blood and healthy tissues without painstaking care by the parents in their proper feeding. Regular hours for food, plenty of food, and the fresh air and sunshine make for their perfect health.

Let me emphasize the necessity of sunshine for every child. That radiant energy comes not from the visible rays of the sun but the ultra-violet rays of short wave length. These rays are most intense from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. and in the Summer months are more intense than in the Winter. Now is the time of year for the children to be out in the sun to get its beneficial effects.

There can be no danger from rickets or other degenerative diseases when your child has the proper food and sunshine and fresh air. A proper study of this nutrition business, and strict adherence to it, covers the whole problem of health for the young child.

FEEDING HOGS IN HOT TIME

Method Is Discussed by Leader
In Department of Animal Husbandry.

By J. W. WUICHER
Department of Animal Husbandry
O. S. U.

Growing and feeding hogs in the summer on some good pasture will almost invariably prove more satisfactory and economical than to attempt to feed in dry lot. This does not mean that dry-lot feeding cannot be profitable but the chances are more favorable if some good pasture is made available.

Of course, a legume pasture, such as alfalfa or one of the clovers is best but if the clover has been a failure, and no other legumes are available, it is not yet too late to get extra good forage by sowing Dwarf Essex rape. This should be sown at the rate of 6 to 8 pounds to the acre and is generally broadcast. It will do best if sown in an old hog lot or other fertile field after plowing and working the ground well. It should be ready for use in from 6 to 8 weeks and will furnish forage for several months if not pastured too closely. Occasionally some difficulty is encountered in getting the pigs to eat the rape readily, but generally after a few days they begin to nibble it and soon come to relish it as much as any other pasture. Once in a while, rape may cause small sores or blisters on the thin curls, remove the pigs from the rape for a time, and if serious, apply sulphur and lard to the sores. The trouble is not likely to be serious or occur a second time.

Bluegrass is probably the most extensively used hog pasture but also is the least valuable. In fact, during the hot summer months it is practically worthless as a feed. In addition, it is more likely to be parasitic and disease infested because of its permanent or semi-permanent nature.

Even with plenty of good pasture available, it will not pay to skimp on the grain feed. While it may seem possible for a time to secure fairly satisfactory gains on an abundance of good forage alone, the best gains and eventually the most economical gains will be obtained when about 3 pounds of grain to each 100 pounds of live weight is fed in addition to the forage.

A good combination of feeds is corn 70 pounds, ground oats 20 pounds, and trinity mixture 10 pounds on legume or rape pasture. If bluegrass pasture is used, increase the trinity mixture to 15 pounds to the hundred and decrease the corn-oats combination accordingly. The trinity mixture consists of two parts tankage, two parts oil meal, and one part alfalfa meal, all by weight. All of the feeds may be self-fed or hand-fed as suits individual preference. If skim milk is available, it certainly should be used but should not be fed in quantities to exceed one gallon to each 3 pounds of grain consumed. With this amount of milk available, the protein supplement may be reduced about one-half of the amounts suggested.

Be sure that plenty of clean, fresh water is available at all times and don't forget that in hot weather shade is almost as essential as the feed. Natural shade is best but where none is to be had, a platform built 3 or 4 feet from the ground and covered with straw or rough boards will provide very satisfactory shade.

Above all things don't let the pigs get very hungry or try to make them gain on forage alone. You may be assured that the pig which is growing or gaining the most rapidly is making the most economical use of his feed and he is more likely to reach market weight at the season of relatively high prices.

WARD'S TEAM BREAKS LOOP RECORD DRUBBING WOODMEN IN LOP-SIDED, 21-0 BATTLE

By Hutchinson Connects For Six Hits, Including Two Home Runs, a Triple, a Double and Two Singles For Total of 15 Bases.

With Bucky Hutchinson leading batting attack that netted 28 runs and 21 runs Doggy Ward's team broke the loop record in a lopsided, 21-0 battle. The next three innings were played in a hurry in order to get seven innings played because of impending rain and no runs were counted. In the seventh the Ward's scored four and in the eighth five more. Jaggy Davis pitched good ball for the Ward's, and although he granted 10 hits, he kept them scattered to the extent that no runners crossed the plate for the losers. Good support helped Davis considerably at several points in the encounter.

Besides Hutchinson's terrific slugging, Freddie Watts chalked up five bingles, Butler had four and Wilson had three hits.

Bill Merriman umpired balls and strikes and Eve Merriman was on the bases.

GROCERS PROTECT LEAD AND DEFEAT C. C. A. BY 8-6 COUNT

Sid Beechey and his gang of paper boxers called the C. C. of A. lost to the grocers at Utilities, Thursday evening, 8-6, when a final inning rally fell short.

This game was another "comedy of errors" on the part of both teams, but especially on the losers.

The explosion came in the second inning when the Grocers scored six of their eight runs, through overthrows by the pitcher, bad throws to the catcher from the infield, and fumbles in the outfield.

Again in the third inning the food men pounded the ball all over the lot and sent a man around the sacks to score a run. The score was now 7 to 0, and all hopes seemed lost for the paper boys, however early in the eighth and continuing through-out the ninth the box makers slugging the pill, and one error after the other followed in the infield and outfield of the Grocers.

In the meantime Beechey, followed by Reid and W. Brungs filled the sacks. R. Brungs stepped to the platter and slammed the ball for a beautiful hit in the outfield and one run after the other crossed. At the end of the eighth the paper men had scored four runs. In the ninth stanza when Goldsberry attempted to run to third base, Hosler on number one sack for the paper boys hurried the pill to R. Brungs on third and caught Goldsberry off and the umpire declared him out.

A reproduction of the eighth inning was followed in the ninth frame by the Mid-West, but they had started the boom too late, however they again started pounding the pill and one after the other the paper makers circled the bases thru bad errors on the infield of the Grocers and sent two fast and furious men across the plate.

Then Lawhorn and Thomas stepped to the plate when chances looked the brightest and popped up into the infield.

Beechey gave four men base on balls, and Smith of the winners allowed two boys on base in this manner and had three strike-outs. Sherd Boyer and Fred Valente umpired.

CANNON QUILTS SENATE ROOM

Announces Decision Not To Answer Any More Questions and Walks Out.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., who for two days has defied the power and authority of the Senate lobby committee to inquire into his political activities, carried his defiance a step further when he appeared today.

The bishop withdrew as a witness before the committee which he had been appearing as a "requested witness."

He announced his decision not to answer any more questions, and followed up his decision by calmly taking his crutch and cane and stalking from the committee room, leaving Senators Wach (D) of Montana, and Blaine (R) of Wisconsin, talking to themselves.

Before leaving, however, the bishop read to the committee another prepared statement in which he complained that he was being pilloried and persecuted by the "wet and Roman-Tammany element" in this country. He also said that he "deeply resented" that his anti-Smith activities in Virginia and his financial accounts were being probed into by a committee.

that had not seen fit to investigate the other side.

Both Blaine and Walsh attempted to point out to the Methodist leader that the committee even without a quorum present was empowered to question him, but the bishop cut short their argument by getting up and walking out, leaving the committee members and the roomful of spectators flut.

WARD'S TEAM BREAKS LOOP RECORD DRUBBING WOODMEN IN LOP-SIDED, 21-0 BATTLE

Lucky Hutchinson Connects For Six Hits, Including Two Home Runs, a Triple, a Double and Two Singles For Total of 15 Bases.

With Bucky Hutchinson leading batting attack that netted 28 hits and 21 runs Doggy Ward's recreation ball contenders walked through the Modern Woodmen at Mason's field Thursday evening to win their game 21-0.

This Hutchinson lad was just too bad for every time he came to the plate he socked the apple for hits. In six trips to the rubber he hit two home runs, a triple, a double and two singles, a total of 15 bases to set an all-time league record. All his drives were to right and left of center field and were clean bingles. By this streak of slugging Hutchinson is connected for 20 hits in his last six games, an average of more than three hits a game.

Hutchinson's home runs were the only four base socks the Ward-men got, for Gelb, in the last inning, immediately after Hutchinson's first knock, and later later in the game connected for the circuit.

The Ward-men started in the opening frame when nine runs crossed the plate. Nothing happened in the second inning and three more scored in the third. The next three innings were played in a hurry in order to get seven innings played because of impending rain and no runs were counted. In the seventh the Ward's scored four and in the eighth five more.

Jaggy Davis pitched good ball for the Ward's, and although he granted 10 hits, he kept them scattered to the extent that no runners crossed the plate for the losers. Good support helped Davis considerably at several points in the encounter.

Graduates Are Banquet Guests Of Women's Club

One of the largest and most important social festivities, connected each year with the high school graduation, and anticipated by the seniors girls, is the annual banquet given in their honor by the Business and Professional Women's club. This year it was held in the St. Philip's parish house, Thursday night. Reservations for the evening were made for 66 guests, including the senior girls, and the members of the women's club.

Miss Mary Rudd Cochran of the Public Library of Cincinnati was the principal speaker of the evening, on a program which was entertaining to everyone. There was no restraint, present sometimes at banquets, and the affair was a great success.

The tables in the parish house were lighted by blue tapers in amber holders, the blue and gold, for the class colors. Amber flower bowls were filled with yellow coreopsis, and blue corn flowers. The napkins were in rings, clasped with the club seal, and the nut cup favors were also blue and gold. The place cards were gold.

When the last guest had arrived, all were seated at their places. A song of welcome greeted the guests of honor, before the first course was served. More singing followed, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick.

The next number on the program was unique. It was a song dedicated to the senior girls. The words were written for them by Miss Charlotte McEwing. The tune was "Should I?" This song was sung by the club quartet composed of Mrs. Mary Morris, Miss Blanche Valentine, Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Miss Lena Householder.

The welcome address was delivered to the seniors by the only graduate to enter the club, since its organization. She was Miss Helen Bartholomew, county health nurse, who graduated from Circleville high school five years ago. The address was splendid, and sweetly said to the graduates. Miss Margie Hunsicker, responded, as a representative of the class, and her speech included the appreciation of the class for the delightful evening made possible and unforgettable, by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Helen Bartholomew sang two solos "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life", and "Garden of Memory". She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rolland Heiskell.

Miss Mary Wilder, president of the organization introduced the speaker, and welcomed her as guest speaker of the evening. Miss Cochran chose for her subject, the choice of vocations, and directed her words to the graduates.

Miss Blanche Valentine added a great deal to the program with her two solos, "Lovely Night" by Hueter, and "Michalmas Dream" by Spross. Mrs. Heiskell was also her accompanist.

The program was brought to a close with the singing of the Emblem Song, by the club quartet. This was followed by the singing of the club song.

The menu for the dinner, was fruit cocktail, chicken croquettes, buttered potatoes, pea patties, tomato salad, hot rolls, ice cream, angel food cake, and blue and gold mints.

in Columbus at six-thirty o'clock. After dinner, the guests were entertained at Mr. and Mrs. Cobb's home, where progressive bridge was enjoyed. Mrs. Lloyd Jones from Circleville won the prize for high score.

PARTY SERIES IS COMPLETED

A luncheon-bridge, Friday at 12:30 o'clock completed a series of three bridge parties at which Miss Margaret Mattinson entertained 68 guests, at her apartment on S. Court-st.

Wednesday at noon, her mother Mrs. Thomas Mattinson of South Charleston was the guest of honor. Twenty guests were entertained at this time.

The scheme for the decoration at this affair was pink, with table appointments, and place cards in this color. The prizes too were wrapped in pink. These were won by Miss Sadie Brunner, and Mrs. David S. Dunlap.

The Thursday party was at 12:30 o'clock, for 28 guests. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. E. C. Mattinson and Miss Lucile Kissel, both from South Charleston.

Green predominated this day, in the decorations, place cards and table appointments, while beautiful flowers in clusters of many colors were used throughout each room.

The prizes were in wrapping of green. Miss Sara Swearingen, and

Mrs. Leland Pontious won the prizes for the highest and second highest scores. Miss Josephine Peters, and Miss Elizabeth Roth, brides-elect also received complimentary prizes.

On Friday, the series of society functions was completed with a luncheon-bridge for 20 guests. The color note was yellow for the decorations. In the center of the luncheon tables were vases of yellow coreopsis.

THREE SHARE PARTY HONORS

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Hunsicker of Williamsport and Mr. Bert Wert of Cherokee, Iowa, shared honors Thursday night at the dinner-bridge at which Mr. and Mrs. John Boggs were hosts, at their residence on W. Union-st.

Mr. Wert is a visitor in Circleville at the residence of Mrs. S. C. Gamble, as the guest of Miss Helen Wittich. Mr. and Mrs. Hunsicker have moved recently from Circleville to Williamsport.

Four tables were arranged for 16 guests at the dinner. The rooms were decorated with beautiful June lilies and roses. On the tables were rosebuds in bud vases.

At bridge following the dinner, Mrs. C. A. Weicon won the high prize for the women, and Mr. A. L. Wilder, the prize for highest score among the men.

Mrs. Boggs was assisted by Miss Margaret Weldon and Catherine Foreman.

VISITORS LEAVE FOR KANSAS CITY

Sterling 925/1000 Fine

A charming life companion this lovely pattern in Sterling silver—bespeaking always with quiet dignity your good taste and knowledge of fine design.

Inspired by the rich beauty of the William and Mary period, this pattern is especially appropriate with furniture and furnishings of early English design, and with our own early American which is so closely related.

Richly embellished with fascinating motifs of arabesque marqueterie, it is nevertheless easy to keep clean because the decoration is sunken in the manner of flat chasing. Quite an unusual effect—indeed, table silver of the utmost distinction.

One of the largest and most important social festivities, connected each year with the high school graduation, and anticipated by the seniors girls, is the annual banquet given in their honor by the Business and Professional Women's club. This year it was held in the St. Philip's parish house, Thursday night. Reservations for the evening were made for 66 guests, including the senior girls, and the members of the women's club.

Miss Mary Rudd Cochran of the Public Library of Cincinnati was the principal speaker of the evening, on a program which was entertaining to everyone. There was no restraint, present sometimes at banquets, and the affair was a great success.

The tables in the parish house were lighted by blue tapers in amber holders, the blue and gold, for the class colors. Amber flower bowls were filled with yellow coreopsis, and blue corn flowers. The napkins were in rings, clasped with the club seal, and the nut cup favors were also blue and gold. The place cards were gold.

When the last guest had arrived, all were seated at their places. A song of welcome greeted the guests of honor, before the first course was served. More singing followed, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Will Fitzpatrick.

The next number on the program was unique. It was a song dedicated to the senior girls. The words were written for them by Miss Charlotte McEwing. The tune was "Should I?" This song was sung by the club quartet composed of Mrs. Mary Morris, Miss Blanche Valentine, Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Miss Lena Householder.

The welcome address was delivered to the seniors by the only graduate to enter the club, since its organization. She was Miss Helen Bartholomew, county health nurse, who graduated from Circleville high school five years ago. The address was splendid, and sweetly said to the graduates. Miss Margie Hunsicker, responded, as a representative of the class, and her speech included the appreciation of the class for the delightful evening made possible and unforgettable, by the Business and Professional Women's club.

Miss Helen Bartholomew sang two solos "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life", and "Garden of Memory". She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Rolland Heiskell.

Miss Mary Wilder, president of the organization introduced the speaker, and welcomed her as guest speaker of the evening. Miss Cochran chose for her subject, the choice of vocations, and directed her words to the graduates.

Miss Blanche Valentine added a great deal to the program with her two solos, "Lovely Night" by Huerter, and "Michell's Dream" by Spross. Mrs. Heiskell was also her accompanist.

The program was brought to a close with the singing of the Emblem Song, by the club quartet. This was followed by the singing of the club song.

The menu for the dinner, was fruit cocktail, chicken croquettes, buttered potatoes, pea patties, tomato salad, hot rolls, ice cream, angel food cake, and blue and gold mints.

Wednesday at noon, her mother Mrs. Thomas Mattinson of South Charleston was the guest of honor. Twenty guests were entertained at this time.

The scheme for the decoration at this affair was pink, with table appointments, and place cards in this color. The prizes too were wrapped in pink. These were won by Miss Sadie Brunner, and Mrs. David S. Dunlap.

The Thursday party was at 12:30 o'clock, for 28 guests. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. E. C. Mattinson and Miss Lucile Kissell, both from South Charleston.

Green predominated this day, in the decorations, place cards and table appointments, while beautiful flowers in clusters of many colors were used throughout each room.

The prizes were in wrapping of green. Miss Sara Swearingen, and

Mrs. Leland Pontious won the prizes for the highest and second highest scores. Miss Josephine Peters, and Miss Elizabeth Roth, brides-elect also received complimentary prizes.

On Friday, the series of society functions was completed with a luncheon-bridge for 20 guests. The color note was yellow for the decorations. In the center of the luncheon tables were vases of yellow coreopsis.

"Treasure" Solid Silver Sterling 925/1000 Fine

A charming life companion this lovely pattern in Sterling silver—bespeaking always with quiet dignity your good taste and knowledge of fine design. Inspired by the rich beauty of the William and Mary period, this pattern is especially appropriate with furniture and furnishings of early English design, and with our own early American which is so closely related. Richly embellished with fascinating motifs of arabesque marqueterie, it is nevertheless easy to keep clean because the decoration is sunken in the manner of flat chasing. Quite an unusual effect—indeed, table silver of the utmost distinction.
